New York, Sept. 15.—Pressmen on five New York morning papers left their posts shortly after midnight this morning, causing a complete tie-up.

Only three of the papers were able to publish first editions. The papers affected are the American, Herald, Times, Tribune and World.

A meeting of the Pressmen's Union was called early this morning, and President Edmund J. Ryan was made for an extended suspension of work. Representatives of the publishers also were called into conference at 2 p. o'clock this morning.

The Union agreed, under which the pressmen had been working, expired September 1. No other agreement has been signed.

FARE RAISE STARTS BIG PROTEST

City and Town Officials to Storm State House at Hearing Next Week

The proposed 20 per cent. increase in commutation ticket rates on the three New England railroads has been met with a wave of protest throughout the Commonwealth.

City officials and business men in scores of towns met hurriedly to discuss plans to defeat the new tariff. Delegations from practically every city and town in Massachusetts will storm the State House next week when the public hearing on the tariff increase is held by the Department of Public Utilities.

WOMEN ENTER FIGHT

At the same time women's organizations in Boston are preparing to lend their efforts to prevent what they believe would be a new direct vote to the hands of the "red hogs" of Boston.

Mrs. Susan V. Fitzgerald, member of the State Legislature, in commenting on the proposed increase in rate said that she thought the railroad had lost many customers during the past few years, and if they persisted in raising the fares, they would lose a lot more.

"Because of the high railroad rates, more and more people are depending on automobiles for transportation," she declared.

EYE WITNESS TO CONFRONT WARD

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Can the millions if the Ward family save Walter S. Ward from the electric chair?

Not if A. Torney-General Carl Sherman can help it.

He made that plain. In his address to the jury, during which Ward fought unsuccessfully not to stop his eyes, Mr. Sherman stated that:

Walter Ward shot Clarence Peters dead with intent and malice, aforethought—a cold-blooded, deliberate murder.

There is not a iota of truth in the Ward self-defense plea.

The State will not be content with anything but a verdict of murder in the first degree.

That carries with it only one penalty—death in the electric chair.

NON-BALANCE FADES

The defendant, immediately arrested, affected extreme nonchalance when the attorney general began. This faded away as Sherman bared his charges.

Ward wore a new Fall suit of light gray. He swung his chair into position directly opposite his jurors. Legs crossed, hands folded in his lap.

DON'T LEAVE YOUR COAT IN PARKED THEATRE AUTOS

Boston theatregoers are requested by Police Captain H. W. Goodwin of the Luggage street station to remove coats and valuables they leave in parked cars while in showhouses.

Thieves making a practice of stealing from such cars have become so numerous, the captain declares, it is hard to cope with them.

Two of this kind were arranged in Municipal Court today. They were Julius Kruppner of New York, claiming stealing two coats, and James Conner, claiming one sweater. Both have records. A special squad of detectives to guard theatregoers' cars has been organized.

Today
A Conservative Animal
What's Good Advertising?
Prince Morning Star
Only 255 Miles an Hour
By Arthur Brisbane

ACROSS IS RECENT BRIDE OF BILLY VAN

MAN IS A CONSERVATIVE animal, the wags say. He also wants something to know, on whom he may now down his coat. That's why rationalism, efforts to establish equality, don't last.

They had such epidemic of foris in Egypt, in Greece and in Rome, but the leaders came back, the quarters favored a d enjoyed looking down on the crowd.

AFTER THE BIG WAR, wise sociologists asked: "In which country will revolution, radicalism and democracy have a better break out first?" Many were Italy, and that is where the Fascist, dedicated to keep down the mob, starting up the King, and maintaining conservatism made their first start.

NOW IN SPAIN comes an imitation of Mussolini. The wags of General Primo Rivera is LAW. When he issues a statement, it becomes a decree binding on the nation. Radicals are looked in jail or fleeing over the borders.

Man is conservative and for a good reason. He doesn't yet know HOW to govern himself, and instead tells him to get somebody else to govern him.

HOWARD W. BOK, who has retired, but can't be idle, offers for advertising prices $5,000 a year, "to encourage merit and stimulate accuracy." The accuracy might be taken for granted. Advertisers are not untruthful, as a class, more than others. And, being intelligent, they know that lying never pays. The age of advertising consists in writing and presenting an idea in a way that makes it easier to read than to skip. The first prize should go to the man able to COMMAND ATTENTION.

JUST BEFORE HE reached his ranch to build up his overworked system and gain popularity, the Prince of Wales was met by David Bear's Paw and Red Cloud, chief of the Sioux Indian tribe. They named the prince "Chief Morning Star." He responded graciously.

Evening Star would perhaps have been a better name. Royalty is not to stay above the horizon long, in spite of loyalty and Fascism.

AFRICA has covered 255 miles in one hour, better than one mile every fifteen seconds. It's fast, but not fast enough.

When that speed is multiplied by four, as it will be, men will travel 1,000 miles as fast as the sun BEGINS to travel.

Then, lying on the neck of an air ship far different from anything we see now, you will be able to take an all-year sun bath, going around the earth, with the sun always directly above your head.

THE FEDERATED FARMERS labor party meets in New York, prepared to do great things for farmers and labor, in the election of 1924.

In 1924, the farmers will forget laborers, laborers will forget farmers. They will divide and vote in the good, old-fashioned way, some for Democrats, some for Republicans.

You can't get much of a labor party where the common laborer in big cities get $7 a day, skilled labor from $10 to $20 a day. And you can't organize

GRACE WALSH
New York, Sept. 18.—A radio courtship and a missed letter led to the revelation today that Billy B. Van, the comedian, and Grace Walsh, singing comedienne, were married in New Jersey some time ago.

Van and Miss Walsh met about four years ago when they were playing in "The Rainbow Girl," and one of their comedy scenes was a wedding in which they took the principal parts.

When they were apart they managed to get on various radio programs and kept one another posted so that each could tune in and "get each other's stuff" with the radio outfits, they always kept in their dressing rooms.

much of a Farmer-Labor party where the problem of the farmer is to get labor cheap enough to make his crops sell at a profit.

STOCK SPECULATORS felt a little more cheerful yesterday, although nothing particular had happened. Perhaps they felt better because nothing desperate happened. Speculators could borrow money at 4 per cent. yesterday and that encourages speculative buying. It would encourage some things, if ordinary business men could borrow at 4 per cent.

IT APPEARS THAT CUBA will have plenty of sugar and to spare, and sugar ought to be cheap. But our own United States Department of Commerce kindly obliged the Cuban government and middle men by announcing falsely a great shortage and foolishly higher prices.

After that, the harmful statement came a cane, feed and all. Now comes the official confirmation of a big sugar crop. But that that don't sell. American women that he's been paying nine cents a pound and more for sugar.

THIS COUNTRY, solemnly saying "Constitution Day," as it is not make a lot of the written word, as the Chinese and others have done. The Constitution is a human being. What has been written by human beings can be changed and improved by human beings.

The Constitution provides for change, and many will come. Meanwhile it's the best Constitution thus far written, one to be cherished, and changed with caution.

IT HAS BEEN SAID that President Coolidge can teach some things about politics even to the wisest political owl. Now it is announced officially that Mr. Coolidge is not trying to force the world Court on the Senate, but will leave that distinguished body to make up its own mind. That confirms the wise owl theory. President Coolidge is able politician, and able politician do well in national conventions.

HOBBY STORES ROXBURY HOSPITAL

Discovers 'Husband' Is Woman

Bay State Woman Sends 'Cal' Wife Tells Strange Story

Howling Mob Stones Mrs. Cuff's Home in "Scar-let Letter" Case

Roxbury reverted to its Puritan days of more than 200 years ago when a howling mob stoned the home of Mrs. Jennie H. Cuff, at No. 588 Parker street.

The scene could have been taken from the pages of The Scarlet Letter. A girl lay dying at City Hospital. Howling into the window, the mob loved a man, too well and she was passing in shame as well as with her life.

In her pitiful story she told of going into the private hospital conducted by Mrs. Cuff that she might be spared her shame. Mrs. Cuff, she said, assisted a black boy doctor in an illegal operation. Something went amiss and the girl, Violet Plush, was turned out into the street. Weak and in pain, she went to the hospital.

Roxbury heard the story in court where Mrs. Cuff was released on $25,000 bail after pleading not guilty to the charge of being an accessory. Whether the woman was innocent or not, the story of morality that pinned the Scarlet Letter fared up in the neighborhood.

A crowd of more than 200 men and boys gathered in front of the home of Mrs. Cuff. Some of the older members of the mob urged her to be given a chance to tell her story at a court hearing which has been set. But they were howled down.

WINDS SMASHED
A chain of an epithet arose. "It's a howler and a howler." A small boy burst a stone. The crash of a flying window splintered into pieces. More stones were hurled and more windows were smashed. The crowd yelled and the air was filled with the sound of the mob urged her to be given a chance to tell her story at a court hearing which has been set. But they were howled down.

Mrs. Cuff was arrested after the riot had subsided and she was taken to the police station. She was released on $25,000 bail after pleading not guilty to the charge of being an accessory to the riot.

WIFE TELLS STRANGE STORY

Lived Together 40 Years and Did Not Know the Difference

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 18.—The strange story of "William Taylor," the woman who for forty years lived the life of a man, was topped by a still stranger story of the woman who spent two score years as "William Taylor's wife."

When located at the home her sister, Mrs. Marcus Adams, at Virac, Mrs. Taylor declared she had not known until Sunday that her "husband" was a woman. Her "husband" had been Friday from cancer.

Married to "William Taylor" at the age of seventeen, she declared that she was not conscious of the fact that their married life was not as that of other men. She also says that her husband guarded her closely from other men, and she was allowed to live in association with other people.

Lees of Beverly Farms Interesting Addition to "Who's News"

MISS DOROTHY KING

Miss D. King has just returned from a trip abroad with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tarrant, of King of Milton.

By BETTY ALDEN.
THE George Lees, of the Beverly Farms colony, are an interesting family, and of more than importance enough to be added to our "Who's News Along the North Shore."

There is Papa Lee, who's an artist. He's very fond of showing, and every now and then he goes over to Scotland with some of his friends to enjoy the sport. When Mr. Lee joined the ranks of benedict, he didn't quite follow in the conventional footsteps of say, his fellow members at the Racquet and Tennis Club. Instead he married lovely Signorina Eva Balletti who comes from a very fine old Italian family.

Mrs. Lee is probably one of the most interesting figures in Boston society. She's keen about various new movements, and last Winter, when a group of society matrons organized "The Open Door," the former Signorina Balletti was one of the leading spirits. "The Open Door" was a club formed for the discussion of interesting happenings of the day, whether in its literature or the more realistic.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee have one son and four daughters. There's the one-time Marie Lee, one of the daintiest girls of her year. She married "Ollie" Tanner, an alliance which turned out most un happily, and now she is Mrs. Huntington W. Frothingham.

Then there's sport-loving Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean, Jr., who has lost none of the vim and zest of her Dorian Lee days. Mr. and Mrs. McKean are also of the Beverly Farms colony, where their place is known as "Willow Tree Farm." They have a quartet of youngsters comprised of eight-year-old Lee McKean and his three younger sisters, Marian, Elizabeth and Pauline. Their mother, who's a tall brunette, is particularly interested in yachting, though for her, like her husband, every sport holds its fascination.

Living rather a quiet life out Dover way is Mrs. Arthur Adams (Margery Lee). Her first husband was Francis W. Sargent, who was fatally hurt quite a few years ago when his horse suddenly became frightened and threw him. After a number of years of widowhood, the former Margery Lee became the wife of Arthur Adams, who was considered one of the most "congenial" barkeepers of the Boston set Club.

One of the daughters is Miss Florence Lee. She seemed so wedded to her art—there's a studio at Beverly Farms—she actually for her—that for a time society wondered a bit. The only son is Harry Lee, who's interested in farming. He has a place of his own at North Beverly.

ONE of the important wedding of the month takes place today, when, in the Church of the Holy Spirit in Mattapan, Miss Martha Peabody becomes the bride of Major Montague W. W. Prouse. A reception will follow at "Hishide," the Milton home of the bride's parents, Major and Mrs. Francis Peabody (Rosemond Lawrence.)

SCHOOL GIRL ELOPER WEDS 'MARRIED MAN'

Spending on her honeymoon in Chicago, Miss Maybelle Sears, 18 years old, Roxbury high school senior, dropped off the train at Albany to visit her mother the news of her marriage to Edward Atterbury, 34 years old, of Boston, who is alleged to have deserted his wife at a beach amusement park the same day the schoolgirl disappeared from her home at No. 24 Howard street, Roxbury.

ASKS ARREST.
Mrs. Sears immediately asked Police Superintendent Crowley to have the Chicago authorities intercept the couple and to arrest the Berver man on the charge of bigamy.

The mother claims that she has positive proof that her daughter's alleged suitor was married to Eugenia Fowler in the rectory of St. Anne's Church, New Bedford, Jan. 21, 1921.

WIFE LEAVES BEHIND.
The wife, she said, worked with him at a Berver Beach amusement park during the summer when she posed as his sister. Mrs. Sears worked at the same place, and it was while visiting her mother that the girl met Edward and became infatuated with him.

SEAMEN SELL LIQUOR ABOARD U. S. VESSEL

Seaman Monahan of the Coast Guard cutter Argus, was dishonorably discharged from the navy following a court-martial which convicted him of selling five quarts of liquor to prohibition agents who boarded the cutter at Woods Hole under the guise of wealthy summer residents of the Cape.

Prohibition agents are preparing to bring liquor charges against other seamen and junior officers of the Coast Guard service, following the trapping of Monahan. It is reported that Coast Guard officials deny any evidence has been uncovered to warrant further action.

Despite attempts at secrecy in the matter, it was learned that Federal Agents Jeremiah Sullivan and Edward Williams testified that they found five quarts of liquor at 15 near from Monahan, and that the liquor was sold and delivered aboard the Argus. Monahan is not a citizen of the United States.

Captain Present H. Overholt, commander of the Coast Guard cutter Argus, is now in New Bedford, and Captain John Street of the Argus, conducted a raid investigation, and sent Monahan ashore at Baltimore with dishonorable discharge.

Monahan, it was reported, offered to obtain fifty cases of liquor for any agent, and sold the five quarts merely as "samples." At the court-martial, Monahan tried to indicate some of his mess-mates. His charges were not confirmed.

HALL PAINTING ONLY A COPY, SAYS EXPERT

Mrs. AUDREE HAHN

Paris, Sept. 18.—Testifying before the American Consul General Thacker, Sir Martin Conway, English Art Connoisseur, said that the "La Belle Ferroniere" in the possession of Mrs. Audree Hahn of Kansas City, is not the original painting by Leonardo da Vinci.

"In my opinion the Hahn picture was painted between 1850 and 1780. I do not pretend to be an expert but after studying art for fifty years, I think I have acquired a sensitive sense of impression to enable me to tell whether or not a picture was painted by one of the great masters," said Sir Martin. The painting in Louvre he regarded as a genuine Vinci.

Sir Martin examined the picture in the presence of attorneys of both parties. The damage suit is the outcome of a statement said to have been made by Sir Joseph Javert to the effect that the Hahn painting was not genuine.

SCREAMS AS HER SON GETS 10 YEARS
George Perry, Philip Goldenburg, Alexander McDonald and Edward Barrington, the boy bandits who on December 12 last held up and robbed the New England Bakery Company of Somerville of $12.75, were sentenced to terms in Charlestown State prison of from eight to twelve years by Judge Frank W. Dilling in the East Cambridge Superior Court.

Mrs. Mary Perry of Roxbury, the seventy-year-old mother of George Perry, the leader of the bandit gang, present in court when the sentences were passed, became hysterical and pleaded with Judge Whiting for clemency. She was told to an anteroom by court attendants.

Perry was sentenced to serve from ten to twelve years, the heaviest sentence given. Goldenburg was given from nine to eleven years, and McDonald and Barrington were each given from eight to ten years.

Persons connected with the case, including District Attorney Andrew K. Reed, believed the boy bandits would get off with lighter sentences. Perry had refrained a plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty. McDonald and Barrington had turned State's evidence.

It had been rumored in the court room that Perry would be sentenced to from three to five years, that Barrington would be placed on probation and that McDonald's case would be filed.

When Perry's sentence was pronounced, the youth remained impassive. For several moments there was absolute silence in the court. Then suddenly the screams of the young bandit's grief-stricken mother startled the occupants of the room.

PLEADS WITH MRS.
"For God's sake, George, why did you ever get mixed up with that terrible gang of boys?" she cried, as she bowed the boy on his knees.

"I taught you better when you were a child. If you had followed my teaching, you would never be going where you are going now."

Several other incidents against the boy bandits, alleging conspiracy, were placed on file.

GYPSY IS HUNTED AS KIDNAPER

By Universal Service

Morgantown, W. Va., Sept. 18.—A one-armed gypsy, travelling in a motorized Romany van, is being sought throughout the Appalachian mountain regions as the man who left to die in a hospital here a baby which tallied in every way with the description of Lillian McKenzie, the four-months-old baby stolen from New York five weeks ago.

The whole country, surrounded by mountains and wooded when the baby was stolen from in front of a ten-cent store in Manhattan, is again being searched by the police to be on the watch for the gypsy woman, who was accompanied by an amiable-looking woman of about twenty-five years.

BABY DIED SUDDENLY.
The pair came to the Morgantown Hospital last Saturday evening and promised to return Sunday morning. They gave no name or address. The baby was evidently born of immediate medical attention, and the physicians took it in. It died Sunday. No trace could be found of the man and woman who left it.

The baby tallied in every way with the description of the McKenzie child—unusually large head, emaciated body, blue eyes, brown hair and about seven pounds in weight.

The police are awaiting the arrival of Peter McKenzie, the father, and a detective from New York, before ordering disposal of the body.

CHILD WAS EXAMINED.
The hospital physicians said the woman had declared the baby was of Summer complaint, but that they found the child suffering from weeks of under-nourishment and was emaciated.

The mother, a New York State license and the man said he was from Syracuse, N. Y., and a veteran of the World War. He said, according to the hospital authorities, that the woman who accompanied him was not his wife, but that he "picked her up" on the road.

BELMONT BOYS AND AUTO MISSING

Mrs. Mary Slaney, the mother of eight children, of No. 173 Waverly street, Belmont, the youngest five years old, has reported to the Boston American for her sixteen-year-old son, Thomas, who left home Labor Day and has not been seen or heard from since.

Thomas Slaney, William Butcher

"I don't know what I will do if he does not come home, my heart is almost broken," said the mother as she told her plight. "I have seven other children. Besides, how I can do it unless he comes home to me."

The boy left home with another boy, William Butcher, of Thomas street, Belmont, in the Butcher boy's sister's automobile.

"I don't know why he ever did it. I always treated him as well as I could and his father worked every day so there is no reason why he should leave home."

"If an alarm that they will sell the auto and get into bad company, and then he will never come home. My neighbors told me to go to the Boston American on Summer street."

"I don't think it was hard for me to see him, having seven children to take care of, I managed somehow."

The boy's auto is a Ford touring with registration plate No. 250,098. Anybody seeing this car please call Main 218 or notify the boy's parents.

The pajamas figure in the divorce proceedings of Lewis E. Keith, a wealthy Lynn man who seeks freedom from his wife, Inez, on the grounds of infidelity with Donald H. Fuller. The case is being tried in Suffolk Probate Court before Judge Arthur W. Dolan.

The purple pajamas were found in Fuller's dresser during a midnight raid, by Constable Henry M. Goodrich of Lynn couldn't tell whether they were a man's or a woman's.

The raid was made at No. 5 Cottage Park road, Winthrop, last April Mr. Keith, Constable Goodrich and two detectives comprising the raiding party.

According to their testimony, they found Mrs. Keith lying on the outside of a couch in her nightgown, apparently reading, while Fuller was in an adjoining room. The door between the two rooms was open. There was a light in Mrs. Keith's room.

HAIRPINS ON DRESSER
The divorcee testified that they found a woman's powder puff, several hairpins and a woman's comb on top of Fuller's dresser. In the drawers of the dresser, they said, they found linen for a man and a woman. In one drawer they found several men's silk ties and shirts mixed with a woman's hat.

In a closet they found several dresses and shoes or four suits of men's clothes. Fuller said he and women visited late by side on the last floor. Fuller seemed nervous when the raiders looked in on him, according to the testimony.

"Had you ever met Mr. Fuller before you saw him that night?" asked one of the attorneys of Mr. Keith.

"No, I never had the pleasure," said the woman who was found in the room adjoining that in which his wife was.

"No," replied Keith, who had previously stated that the door between his wife's room and Fuller's was open.

"What did you say to Fuller?" Keith was asked.

SUBJECTS EJECTED MOTHER

Alleged Attack Follows Quarrel Between Aged Couple in Jamaica Plain Home

Truancy on the part of Dr. Walter E. Parry, seventy-two years old, No. 1 Aldworth street, Jamaica Plain, and a regular admirer of his wife, led to the doctor's beating, choking, and ejecting his wife from her home, according to her story. A summons has been issued for Dr. Parry to appear in the West Roxbury Court.

Parry, a Black Bay dentist, has been practicing on Boylston street for more than twenty years. According to Mrs. Parry, who has been his wife for twenty years, Parry returned home late last week after an absence, and became angry when his wife questioned him.

The doctor then left the house in a rage, according to his wife, and returned the next day with a moving van, violently ejected her from the house, and grabbed the house of everything portable, and disappeared.

A straight thin line compressed tightly by a pair of lips, a man who held his life in their hands. There was a faint smile on his face, and he was looking at the man who had just been shot. "You will have an opportunity before the trial ends, to see him," said Mr. Sherman.

Mr. Sherman made a point of the fact that only one shell was found at the scene of the killing although Ward had sold of a gun battle with Barker.

Mr. Sherman declared he would prove that Ward did when he asserted that Ward had been with him on the night before Peters was killed.

When Famous Beauties Bet Fortunes at Deauville

"Mascot" Lapdogs and "Magic" Emeralds,
Latest Superstitions of Gold-Lined Young
Millionaire Matrons
from America,
Gambling
Like Mad

A MERICAN society leaders returning from Deauville, France, tell of an extraordinary wave of new and grotesque superstition that has taken hold of women players who throng the gambling casino of the gay watering place.

Last year the feminine devotees of roulette and baccarat—particularly the Americans—were putting their faith in elaborate and complicated "systems," each one guaranteed to beat the bank—and each one wholly different.

This season they have thrown mathematics to the wind, and have pinned their faith to mascots, good luck charms, fetiches.

Of course, superstition is nothing new among gamblers. But the ones now rampant at Deauville are of a new kind. The most fantastic episode of all, perhaps, is that of the Baroness d'Eranger and her mascot dog, though that of the pale beauty with the "magic emerald" runs it a close second.

The Baroness d'Eranger, American and former wife of Peter Cooper Hewitt, who enjoys parts of two huge fortunes—one from the inventor-husband whose lights are used in the movies, and one from the great banking house of Eranger into which she subsequently married—is, or has been, one of Europe's greatest gamblers.

She came to Deauville early in the summer, and at once began spectacular play for large sums. She was always magnificently groomed, and carried on her arm a tiny Pomeranian, which she held in her lap while she was playing, so that the dog could view the table.

Day after day she wagered and won large sums. People who sat beside her were amazed to notice that before placing her bets, she watched closely the slightest movement of the lap-dog, and seemed to get from it, in some mysterious and perhaps wholly imaginary way, the inspiration which told her what number, color or card to play.

And she won in an extraordinary manner, day after day, exciting the jealousy of less fortunate players.

But—there is a rule against bringing dogs into the Casino. In the case of such a tiny one as Baroness d'Eranger's mascot, the officials were not disposed to enforce the rule, particularly against a woman of such wealth, importance and beauty.

Others must have complained, because, on a certain evening when the Baroness was about to enter the Casino, magnificently groomed, her hand-bag bulging with gold and thousand-franc notes, with the lap-dog on her arm, she was met by an obsequious, embarrassed official, who spoke, with gestures of regret:

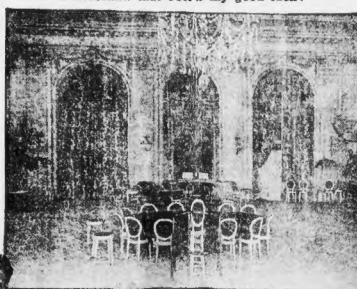

"Madame, I am delighted, but there is a rule, you know—a rule about bringing beasts—how you say it? I mean animal—into the Casino. Even good little beasts, they are not allowed. You see how sorry I am for you, coming with pride, but the little Toto is must be put to remain outside."

"Animal yourself!"—or something which sounded like that—the Baroness responded. "Do you not understand that Toto is my good luck?"

But the official, still obsequious, yet firm, barred her path.

Baroness d'Eranger gave way to the inevitable. She

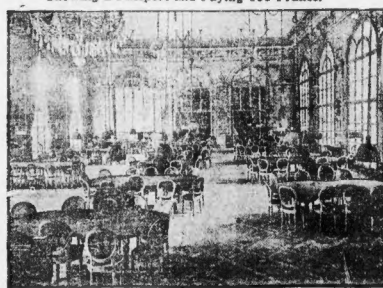

"Animal yourself!" or something which sounded like that—the Baroness responded. "Do you not understand that Toto is my good luck?"

At Left: Baroness d'Eranger, Whose Dog Mascot Was Banished from the Casino, and Andre Bruguere After a Swim.

One of the Casino's Many Gaming Rooms for Predigal Tourists, Entrance to Which is Gained Only After Showing a Passport and Paying 100 Francs.

One of the Gambling Rooms at the Deauville Casino, Reserved for Private Parties, Where High Stakes Are the Rule.

Baroness played for heavy stakes, and where she had previously won almost without intermission, now began to lose steadily. Thousands of her francs were raked in by the croupier.

"I knew it!" she whispered, gathered up her almost empty hand bag, and departed from the Casino.

Remaining at Deauville for more than a week afterward, she refused to discuss the incident. But did not go near the Casino again. As she had been one of the steadiest gamblers, her absence made a sensation.

Her friends are wondering if she has quit for good. She would not discuss the part Toto had played in her "reform," but said:

"Gambling is a foolish game, and it is high time I got wise to the fact."

More fortunate in her choice of a mascot, according to gossip which has come back to Newport and New York, was a mysterious American woman calling herself Mrs. James Brown, a pale beauty, clad in black lace, whose daring play astonished the most seasoned gamblers.

Her mascot was, and is, a huge emerald sunset ring, which she wears on her engagement finger. Before placing a bet, she looks long and intently into the green stone, and each time she wins she kisses the jewel.

For four successive nights she started in with $1,000 and ran it up within a few hours to sums varying from $30,000 to $60,000.

Other superstitious players may object to Mrs. Brown's mascot, but there is no rule against bringing rings into the Casino—a place where practically all the women are gorgeously gowned.

The biggest sensation of the year at Deauville is the number of American women who are playing for heavy stakes. Among them is said to be Mrs. George Bullard, of New York, who won thirty thousand francs the first time she sat down at the table. Miss Mary Corcor, of Chicago and New York, prominent socially and voted the greatest beauty on the steamer on which she returned home, is reported to have lost rather heavily. The Duchess de Talleyrand, formerly Anna God is one of the steadiest and most consistent players, taking her winnings and losses with equal good grace. Mrs. Adele Whitehead, of Cleveland, it is reported, went "banco" and won $20,000 in one big pot. Muriel Spring, the American actress, has been a regular player, and greatly admired for her beautiful gown.

Perhaps the fact that the King of Spain recently acquired a one-third interest in the Deauville Casino and goes there frequently, accounts for its increasing popularity with women. At any rate hundreds of them are flocking there, with Americans predominating, and at least half of them have some mascot.

Medbury Says

By John P. Medbury

THE latest thing in hospitality is for some friends to invite you to their house for dinner, drive you there in their car but first fill you up with hot dogs on the way.

IF the dinner is scheduled for seven they usually wait for you at six so that you'll have time to eat five or ten frankfurters beforehand.

THIS more encourages you eat, the more welcome you are.

OF course they let you pay for the hot dogs, it would be a social error on their part to buy them.

IT'S all right for your host to be a family, providing he families longer than you do.

THERE is an old adage, "He who fumbles does, sure last."

ANY woman can give a dinner party to twenty people and not be any one of them if she has forethought enough to fill her guests up with hamburger sandwiches first.

YOUR host usually drives his automobile with all the windows wide open so that the air will make you hungry. Then he takes you to the machine along the highway for something to eat you don't suspect anything.

He generally stops at a hot dog stand about five or six blocks from his house so that they won't be any chance of your getting hungry again by the time you get there.

CAN you imagine some couple saying, "We went up to Mr. and Mrs. Connolly's house for dinner last night, they knew every hot dog along the highway." Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd. Inc.

ONCE-OVERS

Copyright, 1933, by International Feature Service, Inc. GIVE CONSIDERATION TO OLD EMPLOYEES.

Mr. Employer, what are you going to do with the men in your employ, the men who have given you years of service, but who, even doing their best, cannot meet your requirements?

Are you going to discard them as you would some piece of machinery which is not up to date and rapid in movement? Are you going to add tragedy to their declining years by throwing them out of work at an age when it would be difficult for them to get a job?

Surely these men because of their knowledge of your business, their familiarity with your plant, and their loyalty, so far as your desires for the organization are concerned, can be placed in positions where they would be valuable to you.

If they have worked for you for years they have given you the best they had, and if they had not been sufficient for your needs they would have been discharged years ago.

As my first breakfast in a house where I was a guest my hostess, who sat opposite me, suddenly looked up from her tray and remarked: "It is so nice to have such a beautiful object to which I can raise my eyes."

I stammered my thanks for the compliment, never having been called a beautiful object. I then imagined my embarrassment when every one smiled and I discovered that I was not the beautiful object to which she referred, but the lovely porcelain lamp shade which hung just above my head.
